

Database Crossword

Name _____

Clues Across

- 2 See 6 across (3,5)
- 6 and 2 Down. A field in a record that is unique to that record i.e. No two records are the same (3,5)
- 7 In a database file each record has the same structure and is made up of a group of these. (6)
- 8 A database layout that displays one record at a time and allows a user to input data into boxes. (4)
- 9 Rearranging a databases records with a chosen field in alphanumeric or numeric order. (4)
- 10 A database layout that displays records in rows and fields in columns. (5)
- 12 Information that is entered into a computer system for processing. It is however meaningless until it is placed in the correct context. (4)
- 15 Whole numbers either positive or negative i.e. no decimals or fractions. (7)
- 16 and 3 Down A * symbol used when you only know part of the value to search for e.g. *port will find Southport, and Newport. (4,4)

Clues Down

- 1 _____ is the checking that data which has been entered into a computer is the same as the original data. This is done by proof reading when a person reads the data entered and compares it to the original data, or double data entry by two different people. (12)
- 3 See 16 Across (4,4)
- 4 One of a set that makes up a database file.(6)
- 5 The result of a database query that is intended to be seen by someone else (6)
- 8 Word processor work is saved as a document, database work is saved as a _____. (4)
- 11 A general term for data in the form of text which may include letters, digits and punctuation. (12)
- 13 The checking by computer of data at the input stage to detect any data that is incomplete or unreasonable. (10)
- 14 To search for a list of things you want the computer to look for. (5)